THE BLAIRMORE ENTERPRISE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1925.

$2.00 PER ANNUM

REBEKAHS TO HOLD SALE OF WORK AND TEA

A sale of work and tea will be held in the Lodge Hall on Thursday afternoon of next week, under the auspices of Crowview Rebekah Lodge, from 8 to 6.

A large quantity of useful articles will be on sale. You are cordially invited to attend.

Draws for several valuable prizes will be a feature of the evening.

ODDFELLOWS' ANNUAL BALL

The I.O.O.F.'s fifteenth annual ball will be held in the opera house tomorrow night (Friday). The Night Hawks five-piece orchestra, including Mr. A. D. Coltman, of Blairmore, will be on hand. The members of Crowview Rebekah Lodge will put on the supper. The dance should prove to be the best of the season and should not be missed by those who favor this form of recreation.

NOTICE TO HOME BANK DEPOSITORS

COMMISSIONER UNDER THE HOME BANK RELIEF ACT HERE NEXT WEEK

Mr. G. G. Henderson, of Fernie, recently appointed a commissioner under the Home Bank Relief Act for Fernie and Blairmore, will be at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Blairmore, on Monday and Tuesday of next week, October 19th and 20th. Mr. Henderson will attend to claims of Home Bank depositors.

SHADOW SOCIAL NEXT MONDAY

The Tuxis Boys of the United church will hold a shadow social next Monday evening in the church. The ladies are requested to bring a basket with lunch for two. The lady's shadow will be auctioned and the buyer of that particular shadow will have supper with her.

A splendid program has been arranged that commences at 8 o'clock sharp.

The object of this and other monthly events that will follow is to raise funds for the boys' work. The United church spends over $1000 per year on boys. This year money matters are difficult, the boys are starting the winter's work with a debt of $50. The clubroom, which is the most useful place in town for boys these long evenings, will need an outlay of over $100, as they intend to purchase a carpet ball set; then there is the hockey season coming on with its necessary expense. The boys have undertaken to raise this money themselves.

The men in charge of this work solicit the support of other interested men and will appreciate it very much.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH ANNUAL TEA AND SALE OF WORK

The ladies of St. Anne's church will hold their annual tea and sale of work in the Masonic hall on Wednesday afternoon, November 26th, from 3 to 6. A whist drive will be held in the evening of that date at 8 o'clock.

LIBERAL MEETING

WELL ATTENDED

The local opera house was well filled on Friday night for the Liberal meeting.

The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by Mr. L. Dutil, who introduced the first speaker of the evening, Mr. T. C. Milnes, Liberal candidate for the Macleod riding. Mr. Milnes spoke briefly and was followed by Mr. J. E. Gillis, who very clearly related the difficulties experienced by the prime minister in 1921 in forming a cabinet that would be representative of all Canada. Other matters, such as the Home Bank Relief Bill, etc., were also dealt with at length.

The principal speaker of the evening was the Honorable Charles Stewart, minister of the interior and mines. Mr. Stewart, after appealing for the support of the electors in behalf of Mr. Milnes, dealt with some of the major issues that confronted the country at this time. Mr. Stewart was accorded a hearty ovation.

LECTURES ON HYGIENE

Mr. F. T. Cook, of the provincial health department, held two meetings in the United church at Blairmore on Friday and Saturday evenings, the 9th and 10th, when he showed motion pictures and gave lectures on the subject of "Social Hygiene."

On Friday evening at the meeting for men and boys, there were nearly two hundred present, chiefly young men between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five years.

On Saturday evening, about fifty women and girls were present.

Both lectures were highly appreciated and much credit is due the department of health for bringing such vital questions before the public. Such pictures and lectures make material contributions to the social, moral and spiritual life of the community.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND

St. Luke's Church, Blairmore. Services Sunday, October 18th. Patronal Festival of St. Luke, our 21st anniversary in Blairmore.

11 a.m.—Holy Communion.
2.30 p.m.—Festal Children's Service.

7 p.m.—Evening Service.
Special music will be sung at each service.

H. Laurence Nobbs,
Priest-in-charge.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING HERE OCTOBER 24th

A public meeting will be held in the local opera house on the night of Saturday, October 24th, commencing at 8 o'clock, to be addressed by Mr. A. L. Smith, K.C., of Calgary; John Heron, of Pincher Creek, Conservative candidate for the Macleod constituency, and others.

The tariff issue and its relation to the coal industry will be the main subject.

Mr. J. Charbonnier, managing director of the West Canadian Collieries, Limited, returned Sunday morning from an extended visit to France.

Anglin, little son of Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Young, was admitted to the local hospital on Tuesday and operated upon for appendicitis. As we go to press, Anglin is reported doing nicely.

MEETING OF COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the town council on Monday night was presided over by Deputy-Mayor A. E. Ferguson, in the absence of Mayor McLeod. Councillors Hayes, Sartoris, Patterson and Montalbetti were present. A small batch of accounts were passed for payment.

Mr. J. A. McDonald asked as to when the promised sidewalk leading to the south section of the town via sion proved very interesting. Mr. Fifth Avenue was to be laid. Council MacKenzie and Mr. Strachan motor by motion decided to take the matter up immediately and to lay a cinder walk along the east side of Fifth Avenue south, as far as the McDonald residence.

Eldred Palmer underwent an operation for appendicitis at the local hospital on Monday last, and is doing nicely.

The members of Vimy Chapter, O.E.S., are holding a sale of work, etc., in the Lodge Hall on Wednesday, December 2nd. Further particulars will be given out later.

MEETING OF MINING INSTITUTE

A meeting of the Rocky Mountain Branch of the Canadian Mining Institute was held at the Greenhill Grill on Monday afternoon. Besides representatives of the various coal companies in the district, "Bob" Strachan, of Fernie, and G. W. (Spike) MacKenzie, of Montreal, secretary of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, were present. The session to the south section of the town via sion proved very interesting. Mr. Fifth Avenue was to be laid. Council MacKenzie and Mr. Strachan motor by motion decided to take the matter up immediately and to lay a cinder walk along the east side of Fifth Avenue south, as far as the McDonald residence.

Mr. Nyblock, representing the John Martin Paper Company of Calgary, was a visitor to The Enterprise on Monday.

Miss Crystal, the new teacher appointed for the thirteenth room at the local school, arrived here on Tuesday. Up to the present, Mrs. Harper has been substituting for her.

FREE GOVERNMENT INFORMATION Increase Poultry Profits by Marketing Co-operatively

THE Western Wheat Producers, the Ontario honey men, and others have made co-operative selling a marked success. They have established prices and increased their profits by standardized grading and shipping methods, and applying efficient salesmanship and merchandising to the disposal of their crops. By these methods the poultry producers, too, can secure their best prices. The outstanding proof of this is Price Edward Island, where, for the past thirteen years, expert and efficient salesmanship applied to co-operative marketing has saved thousands of dollars annually for the poultry farmers and permanently stabilized their markets.

Naturally, to be successful, co-operative marketing must be handled efficiently. How to form and operate successfully a marketing organization is detailed in the FREE booklet, "Co-operation in Marketing," issued by the Department of Agriculture. To obtain it, together with complete list of FREE pamphlets, fill in this slip, and return it post free to:

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog. Is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

Pierrot, the trapper, received word that McTaggart, the factor, would arrive at Pierrot's cabin the next day to demand the hand of his daughter, Nepesee. "He is a beast—a man-devil," Pierrot warned Nepesee. Baree, the wolf-dog, hunting near McTaggart's camp, was caught in one of the game snares laid by the factor. McTaggart, finding him lying trampled up like an Indian papoose, cried, "You little devil! I ought to beat your brains out—and I believe I will!"

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

The attack fell. It fell again and again, and when McTaggart was down, Baree lay half stunned, his eyes partly closed by the blows, and his mouth bleeding. "That's the way to take the devil out of a wild dog," snarled McTaggart. "I guess you won't try the biting game again, eh, youngster? A thousand devils—but you want almost to the bone of this hand!"

He began washing the wound again. Baree's teeth had sunk deep, and there was a troubled look in the factor's face. It was July—a bad month for blizzards. From his kit he got a small flask of whiskey and turned a bit of the raw liquor on the wound, cursing Baree as he burned into his flesh. Baree's half-shut eyes were fixed on him steadily. He knew that at last he had met the deadliest of all his enemies. And yet he was not afraid. The cub in Baree McTaggart's hand had not killed his spirit. It had killed his fear. It had roused in him a hatred such as he had never known—not even when he was fighting Ooboomslee, the outlaw owl. The fearful animosity of the wolf was burning in him now, along with the savage courage of the dog. He did not flinch when McTaggart approached him again. He made an effort to raise himself, that he might spring at this man-morderer. In the effort, he swaddled up as he was the blanket, he rolled over in a helpless and ludicrous heap.

They began to journey before the sun was up, for if Baree's blood was almost dead within him, Baree McTaggart's was scorched his body with the heat of his anticipation. He made his last plans as he walked swiftly through the forest with Baree under his arm. He would send Pierrot at once for Father Grotin at the mission seventy miles to the west. He would marry Nepesee—yes, marry her! He would tickle Pierrot. And he would be alone with Nepesee while Pierrot was gone for the missioner. This thought flamed McTaggart's blood like strong whiskey. There was no thought in his hot and unreasoning brain of what Nepesee might say—or what she might think. He was not after the soul of her. His hand clenched, and he laughed harshly as there flashed on him for an instant the thought that Pierrot would not want to give her up. Pierrot! Bah! It would not be the first time he had killed a man—or the second.

McTaggart laughed again, and he walked the faster. There was no chance of his losing—no chance for Nepesee to get away from him. He, Baree McTaggart—was lord of this wilderness, master of its people, arbiter of their destinies. He was powerful—and the law.

The sun was well up when Pierrot, standing in front of his cabin with Nepesee, pulled to the hind in the trail three or four hundred yards away, over which McTaggart had just appeared.

"He is coming!"
With a face which had aged since last night, he looked at Nepesee. Again he saw the dark glow in her eyes and the deepening red of her parted lips, and his heart was sick again with dread. Was it possible—She turned on him, her eyes shining, her voice trembling.

"Remember, Nepesee—you must send him to me for his answer," she cried quickly, and she darted into the cabin. With a cold, gray face Pierrot faced Bush McTaggart.

CHAPTER XIII.

From the window, her face screened by the folds of the curtain which she had made for it, the Willow saw what happened outside. She was not smiling now. She was breathing quickly, and her body was tense. Bush McTaggart paused not a dozen feet from the window and shook hands with Pierrot, her father. She heard McTaggart's coarse voice, his boisterous greeting, and then she saw him showing Pierrot what he carried under his arm. There came to her distinctly his explanation of how he had caught his captive in a rabbit-snares. He unwrapped the blanket. Nepesee gave a cry of amazement. In an instant she was out beside them. She did not look at McTaggart's red face, blushing in its joy and exultation.

"It is Baree!" she cried.
She took the bundle from McTaggart and turned to Pierrot.

"Tell him that Baree belongs to me," she said.
On the floor of the cabin Nepesee dropped on her knees and fastened the wrapping the blanket. She was not afraid of Baree. And then, as Baree rolled in a limp heap on the floor, she saw his half-closed eyes and the dry blood on his jaw, and the light left her face as twilight. As the sun is shadowed by a cloud.

"With an oath he snatched his revolver from its holster."

"Baree," he cried softly. "Baree—Baree!"
She partly lifted him in her two hands. Baree's head sagged. His body was numb under his weight. He was powerless to move. His legs were without feeling. He could scarcely see. He heard her voice! It was the same voice that had come to him that day he had felt the sting of the bullet, the voice that had pleaded with him under the rock.

The voice of the Willow thrilled Baree. It seemed to stir the sluggish blood in his veins, and he opened his eyes wider and saw again the wonderful stars that had glowed at him so softly the day of Wakayoo's death. One of the Willow's long hands fell over her shoulder, and he smelled again the sweet scent of her hair as her hand caressed him and her voice talked to him. Then she got up suddenly and left him, and he did not move while he waited for her. In a moment she was back with a basin of water and a cloth. Gently she washed the blood from his eyes and mouth. He scarcely breathed. But Nepesee saw the little quivers that shot through his body when her hand touched him, like electric shocks.

"He beat you with a club," she was saying, her dark eyes watching him. "He beat you! That man-beast!"

There came an interruption. The door opened, and the man-beast stood looking down on them, a grin on his red face. Instantly Baree showed that he was alive. He sprang back from under the Willow's hand with a

ITCHY PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE Bothered Over A Year. Cuticura Healed.

"I was bothered with pimples for over a year. They were itchy and small and scaled over and were scattered all over my face. The pimples looked like little red spots and caused me to scratch and my face was disfigured. I tried other remedies but without success. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it I got relief. I purchased more and in about two months I was completely healed." sudden snarl and faced McTaggart. The hair of his spine stood up like a brush; his fangs gleamed menacingly, and his eyes burned like living coals. "There is a devil in him," said McTaggart. "He is wild-born of the wolf. You must be careful or he will take of a hand, he snatched!" It was the first time he had called her that lover's name in Cree—sweetheart! Her heart pounded. She bent her head for a moment over her clenched hands, and McTaggart—looking down on what he bore for his confusion—said his name caressingly on her hair. From the door Pierrot had heard the word, and now he saw the caress, and he raised a hand as if to shut out the sight of a sacrilege.

"Mon Dieu!" he breathed.
In the next instant he had given a sharp cry of wonder that mingled with a sudden yell of pain from McTaggart. Like a flash Baree had darted across the floor and fastened his teeth in the factor's leg. "They had bitten deep before McTaggart freed himself with a powerful kick. With an oath he quashed his revolver from its holster. The Willow was ahead of him. With a little cry she darted to Baree and caught him in her arms. As she looked up at McTaggart, her soft, bare throat was within a few inches of Baree's naked fangs. Her eyes blazed.

"You beat him!" she cried. "He hates you—hates you!"
"Let him go!" called Pierrot in an agony of fear.
"Mon Dieu! I say let him go, or he will tear the life from you!"
"He hates you—hates you—hates you!" the Willow was repeating over and over again into McTaggart's startled face. Then suddenly she turned and drove the revolver from his arm. He was smiling. (To be continued)

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants, and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system, and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. A Great Manufacturing Centre

Over Thirteen Thousand Factories

Located Near Philadelphia
In the metropolitan area of Philadelphia, within an hour's train ride of the city and doing most of their marketing within the territory and a very large part of it in Philadelphia, dwell 2,320,000 persons. Within it are located 13,277 manufacturing establishments, giving employment to 214,300 wage earners, buying nearly two billion dollars worth of raw materials and turning out products valued at more than three billion, four hundred million dollars a year, with an annual wage roll of six hundred and sixty million dollars. Philadelphia alone claims over 9,600 of these factories, employs over 280,000 of the workers, who receive over $26,000,000 a year in wages and produces nearly two billion dollars worth of manufacturing goods.

Gasoline Stronger Than Dynamite

Few Realize Danger When They Are Using It

The most dangerous, yet the most widely used commodity, without thought of its danger, is gasoline. Five gallons of it has the explosive force of more than 400 pounds of dynamite.

This same amount will evaporate into 5,000 cubic feet of gas which, if ignited, will expand suddenly, 4,000 times its space.

Yet gasoline is perfectly harmless except in gaseous form, when mixed with air.

That's how its enormous power is used in internal combustion engines.

Hoping Prince Will

Revive British Trade

Manufacturers Believe Trip to South America Will Help Business

With the near return of the Prince of Wales to England, British manufacturers and business men are voicing hopes that something good is coming to them from the Prince's ambassadorship to South America. They are looking to him for some such slogan as King George's "Wake up England" to galvanize drooping industry here. "Godfrey" Chismann, secretary of manufacturers' representative, 2,000 firms, referring to his expectation of a national appeal from the Prince, said: "Nothing but good could result from such a call which would be welcomed by the workers and equally by the employers."

"Labor as a whole has great respect for the Prince and should be made an appeal his words likely would have great effect with the working people."

"It is significant that he turned his attention while in South America to the situation of the British markets, and I am sure he discovered during his industrial researches that we should protect their markets from unfair competition."

No Longer A Map

Getting First-Hand Knowledge To Teach To Pupils

It would be safe to say that there is no number of the party of British teachers who are visitors in Victoria at the present time who is not thoroughly impressed with Canada and the opportunities it offers to all who have the least enterprise and vision. These educationists are going back to Britain with a new conception of this Dominion. Several of them confessed that they had been teaching their charges about Canada for years in the classrooms, rather priding themselves that they had been doing ample justice to the theme, but they now realize how much greater and more exhaustive the lesson will have to be when they return with this country on their detail—Victoria Times.

A LITTLE BOOKLET MOTHERS SHOULD HAVE

It Tells What a Mother Ought to Know for Baby's Sake

Above all things every mother should have a booklet that tells her what to do for her baby, whatever their age, may be bright, healthy, good-natured, rosy boys and girls with clear eyes, clear shinned halos, good sleepers, bright wakers. Every mother's wish for her little folk is that they may be well.

It is natural for little folks to be well. No wise mother thinks that her child at any age is in a natural state unless it is well and happy. No mother can expect, though, that the child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to make baby's battles for health easily won.

Valuable little booklet, entitled "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness" has been prepared, and as it is something every mother should have a copy will be sent free to any mother on request who will mention this paper by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Gallantry Of British Captain

Left Course to Deliver Medicine to German Ship

A British liner left her course to seek a German ship to transfer to the former, enemy, a day package of two anti-toxin necessary to save a woman's life. The action of Captain Gommel, of the Fusanica, in turning back on this mission of humanity Captain Wittstein, of the Moenchberg, calls "one of the most gallant acts ever performed by a captain of a merchant vessel." And yet a few short years ago the two men, both naval reservists, would have been as eager to sink each other's ship, with all aboard, as they were this week to co-operate in aid of a single passenger, stricken in mid-ocean. Loyalty to strange gods makes human beings sponsor curiously incoherent actions. But there is one loyalty, that of gallantry in time of need, in which the British merchant seaman is seldom known to fail.—Hullmore Sun.

Life Of Canadian Parliaments

Shortest Was One Year and Four Days, Longest Was Six Years

Ottawa statisticians report the actual life of Canada's fourteenth parliament, which was dissolved on September 6, as three years, eight months and thirty days. The shortest parliament in point of time was the second after Confederation, which sat for one year and four days. The twelfth parliament established the record for longevity by carrying on its work for six years.

Four Canadian parliaments have sat through five sessions, two have held six sessions, and the twelfth parliament (session) held seven sessions during its six years in office.

CLIPSE FASHIONS

Ensemble Suit of Unusual Smartness

There is a getting away from the completeness, the comfort and the harmony of the ensemble costume. The model pictured here is dressed in a fashion of unusual flairs. The straight-line frock features the all-around circular flairs of flannel matching the coat. The unlined flannel coat has a collar of white cloth, which is laced on to the cloth collar and may be omitted. The diagram shows the design of the dress, and four sleeves are provided in the pattern. The frock No. 1052, is cut in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust. Size 38 bust requires 4 yds. of 36-inch, or 3 1/2 yds. of 34-inch material. The coat No. 1053, is cut in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust. Size 38 bust requires 4 1/2 yds. of 40-inch, or 3 1/2 yds. of 34-inch material. Each pattern 20 cents.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity, and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

What Pretty Girl Did for Sick Stomach

Miss E. Rich of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I don't know what the cause was, but every few days my stomach would feel all bloated up with gas, my appetite was poor and I felt sick to my stomach—so my mother bought me a bottle of Carter's Little Liver Pills."

"I never thought of using Carter's Little Liver Pills until nothing seemed to help. After using Carter's I felt relieved at once and now as soon as my stomach feels bloated I take a few of Carter's and have the last word."

Treasure Laden Galley Found

Must Have Foundered After Italian

Archaeologists, explaining the drowned city, found by a diving fisherman off the east coast of Tunisia, have made a discovery of great interest.

Sir Denison Ross, director of the School of Oriental Studies, who was in Tunis last spring, told a London newspaper representative that the workers have found that a Greek galley, heavily laden with treasure, lies across one of the streets in the city.

As it is obvious that the galley must have foundered subsequent to the swamping of the city, the discovery will help to place the date when the Mediterranean submerged the busy streets.

The dead city lies between the island of Jerba, known as the Isle of the Lotus Eaters, and the coast; and it stood once in all its splendor—while Rome and Carthage still contended for the empire of the world, or earlier still—between what is now the island and the mainland, before a swift current swept city and townships away.

Too Busy To Spend Money

Haw President of Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, Accumulated Wealth

Samuel Vanauken, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, accumulated money because he was too busy to spend what he earned.

"If you take too much time off to spend your earnings you cannot accumulate, and it is intended for one to accumulate," he told 700 pioneer workers in Duluth industries.

"I early recognized that it was my business and my duty to do all the work which came to me to do in the very best manner that I was able to do it and without any regard for the compensation which I received for it. I saved money. I always saved money. And why? Because I never had time to spend what I earned, and it accumulated."

The ferryman, while plying over a water which was only slightly agitated, was asked by a nervous lady in his boat whether any persons were ever lost in that river.

"Oh, no," said he, "we always find 'em again next day."

End of Boycott Seen

The end of the Chinese boycott against British shipping was seen when ships began arriving at Amoy with cargo and took aboard hundreds of laborers for the Singapore rubber plantations.

It has come to be the habit with some persons that they think themselves hard up when they can't buy all the things they want but don't need.

It is useless for a man to seek a steady job if he isn't fit to work himself.

Farmer Kills Five Lions

Man in Transvaal Believed To Have Broken All Records

Lion shooting records were all recently broken by a Transvaal Boer farmer. He was with his wagon and eight donkeys near a stream. Suddenly the donkeys stampeded, but it was not until dawn that he saw a large male lion feasting on one of his dead animals two hundred yards away. He fired and killed the beast. Immediately a female lion rushed at him. The farmer stopped his rush within ten yards by a shot through the head. Then he began to search for his missing donkeys, and discovered at different spots within half an hour three other lions feasting on another donkey they had killed. He shot all three, and with his remaining donkeys, pulled the wagon he arrived home with five lion skins.

Why Marriages Are Fewer

Francis Gribble, in the London Sunday Pictorial

Rightly or wrongly—but for various reasons—the young women of today, with few exceptions, are less anxious to marry than their mothers were because they have a better time than their mothers had as spinsters.

They have no need to marry for liberty, because they are free as air already, and they have no need to marry for the sake of a home because so many careers are open to them and because there are so many residential clubs in which the bachelor girl can take her ease and enjoy her independence.

Taking their ease and enjoying their independence in this way—provided also with untrammelled opportunities of education—they tend to acquire expensive tastes, and the possession and display of these expensive tastes affects not only their own view of marriage but also that of the men who meet them and are attracted by them.

It confirms the girls in the belief that only men of assured position who can afford to gratify these tastes are worthy of them. At the same time it frightens away suitors, not in an assured position, unable to gratify them, and reluctant to face the reproaches of a wife who has come to regard their gratification as an integral part of woman's right.

And so, as men of assured position are scarce in this impoverished land, the marriage rate diminishes.

Shrunk in the Wash

The teacher was giving a nature lesson on sheep. She explained that before they are sheared they are washed, brushed and combed. Then she showed the children pictures of a sheep, asking if any child could explain to her why the lamb's tail was so much longer than the sheep's?

There was silence, then—"The sheep's tail shrunk in the wash," said Joan, aged five.

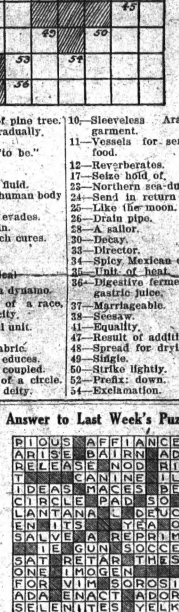

There are more telephones in 10 American homes than all other countries combined.

NEW SUGAR FACTORY OPENS

The "new sugar factory" at Raymond, Alberta, will open for operation on October 23rd. Arrangements are being made for a ceremony in connection with the event, to be attended by prominent men from both the States and Alberta. The visitors from across the line will include President Heber Grant, of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, which established the Raymond factory. It is anticipated that this factory will be but the first of a number eventually to be established in the irrigated districts of Southern Alberta. The factory expects to handle between 75,000 and 90,000 tons of beets this year.

Recently a teachers' union was organized in Nova Scotia and a representative of the provincial department of education was present at the organization meeting and extended greetings and well wishes on behalf of his department.

EDITORIAL FROM THE A.T.A. MAGAZINE

The statement has been made that no law is infringed in Alberta as much as the Liquor Law—except the School Law. We are inclined to believe that there is a good deal of justification for the remark. School boards play fast and loose with school terms without any apparent objection from anybody. For instance, school boards not infrequently go ahead, irrespective of the law, arrange vacations, and closing of the schools to suit themselves. According to the School Act, it is illegal to keep the schools closed before December 25th or after January 2nd (the winter vacation) or before July 1st or after September 1st (the midsummer vacation). True, school boards may make representation to the Minister of Education who has power and authority to grant permission to "rural" school boards to extend the winter vacation, but not beyond four weeks.

The Minister of Education has no judicial function whatever in connection with the opening and closing of schools except in this one particular. The School Law is very specific and definite but seldom observed when a school board desires to save paying a month's salary to the teacher or in some other way save the board expense and inconvenience. Close school first, ask permission afterward—this permission is ever sought at all—this is the common practice of school boards.

It would surprise many people if they knew how few rural boards ever seek permission of the Minister to extend the winter vacation. Schools are closed both in summer and winter and we hear no more of it.

Not that the Department is altogether to be blamed. The impracticability of opening and closing all schools at one time is an inherent defect of the weather, or in the drought, or in the case of lack of funds. Furthermore, the official recognition in the past of another school or which schools must obviously make it difficult for the Department to interfere with the practice of the School Law, but only as far as rural boards are concerned.

However, now that the teacher supply is adequate, the Department can be held responsible for its inaction in enforcement of the School Act in this regard. A constant "checking up" on unlawful closing of schools should be done by the Department. The word "impracticable" should disappear entirely from official vocabulary when dealing with this matter and energetic report followed by legal action should be certain unless the opinion of the school board is proven "impossible." If all schools were ordered open for the longest possible period during each year, the unemployed teacher would be a rarity.

Closing of school, except during the legally authorized vacation, is bad, not only for no school children, but it is a large factor in creating an over supply of teachers with the resultant lowering of our status. It may be urged with some show of reason, that compliance with the School Law is impossible in certain of the pioneer districts where travel to and from school is impossible during the greater part of the winter or where repeated crop failures have made it impossible to collect enough taxes to operate the school throughout the entire year; nevertheless it does not necessarily follow that, generally speaking, school boards are impressed by serious dereliction of duty in not operating the school for every possible teaching day through the entire year, or that drastic action should not be taken by the Department of Education without fail when it is found that a school has been closed without notifying the Department previous to closing, and if, after investigation, it be manifest that every possible means had not been adopted to keep the school in operation, then prosecution of the guilty members of the school board should be ordered. This looseness, lack of definiteness in enforcing compliance with the School Act makes it very difficult for the Department to take any stand at all in cases where a real definite command is essential.

Blairmore is a case in point. The Blairmore School Board, evidently well informed as to the generally understood laxity of the authorities in regard to rural schools, considered that they might take advantage of this laxity and close a large town school even, and make it work in their interests while fighting the Al. finance. Which was a correct surmise. The Board kept the school closed for a couple of weeks in September. By so doing they prevented the staff from again dampening the doors of the Blairmore school. They kept these teachers to be competent and popular and that the contrast between them and the newly engaged teachers might be too obvious even to the school children. If the former left the school one day and the latter entered the next, it would matter to the members of the Board—these rapid economists—that the old staff were still under contract to teach and that they would have to be paid and that other people—the ratepayers—would be being paid to teach, with no value in return, whatsoever, being received. "No," said they, "let's write the Department about it, tell them our troubles, ask them to help us out; and when we get the Minister's acquiescence to close the school, we can hawl through the telephone line and have the school open again on our side." The long-lost for reply arrives. "Here you doubting Thomases," says the Minister of law and order, "what did I tell you? Anybody with ordinary 'horse sense' can read between the lines. The letter says, 'we can't give you permission to do what we have no authority to authorize, but we undertake to emulate violence by placing the telephone to the blind eye.' Hurrah! Let us act accordingly."

The Department, on second thought, comes to the conclusion that what was interpreted as official connivance at law breaking had better be rectified. Consequently a second communication was sent to the School Board, definitely stating that the extension of the midsummer vacation beyond September 1st was illegal. This letter was kept secret and even withheld from the notice of a member of the Board. But the damage had been done. The Board acted in accordance with the interpretation of the first letter and decided to "take a chance" by ignoring the second letter. It transpires that the Board ran no risk. The end-breaking the law—justifies the means—breaking the law.

OUR PROPOSITION, TOO.

The Drumheller Mail remarks: "We have been asked what stand we are taking in the election campaign, so in order to make it clear to our readers we wish to state that we are independent and believe in giving each party equal treatment from a newspaper standpoint."

"Our advertising columns are open to all alike, and we will give one column of reading space to each candidate free of charge, from now until election day, provided no personalities are indulged in and the copy reaches this office by Tuesday night preceding the issue in which it is to appear. G.W.V.A. POPPY CAMPAIGN

The distribution of Veterans' poppies as the "Flower of Remembrance" this year on Armistice Day will assume proportions far in excess of any year since the institution of the custom. Orders received by the G.W.V.A., which acts as distributing agent for Veterans' poppies, are now in excess of the total distribution last year by several hundred thousand. Approximately a million poppies were worn by Canadians last Armistice Day. This year it is estimated that the total distribution will exceed a million and three-quarters.

Several reasons may be ascribed for the increase in Veterans' poppy distribution this year, but the basic and most significant reason may be found in the desire to fulfill the injunction which was simply expressed by Baron Byng of Vimy when he said "Remember the dead by helping the living." Veterans' poppies are the living symbols of remembrance of the 62,000 sons of Canada who now rest peacefully, mostly in a foreign land, after exemplifying their patriotism by giving to their country their greatest gift, their lives. Col. McCrae in dearest verse wrote:

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
And this is it, that is the memory
Of every soldier, soldier—
The countless wooden crosses marking the last resting-places of their comrades with millions of the little bright red flowers hiding the hideous earth
swars, and denying that death ends all.

No other emblem could portray the sacred sentiment of the Canadian towards their war dead in the same manner as Veterans' replicas of the Flanders poppy. Veterans' poppies bear a double significance to the wearer. Besides serving as the "Flower of Remembrance," every poppy replica is the handwork of a veteran whose war disability precludes him from engaging in normal activities. The men employed in Veterans' and Red Cross workshops have faced the choice of idleness as compared with using the impaired faculties which are a legacy to them from war disabilities. Some of these men cannot work more than one or two hours a day, but they prefer to work that length of time rather than be entirely dependent upon the nation. They can look the world in the face and say, "I am disabled, but I do what I can."

At their inception the Veterans' and Red Cross workshops undertook wood and basket work but have since the variety of tasks in which a disabled man might engage in these lines there were still many men anxious to work, but who could not get placed. The manufacture of poppy replicas solved this problem for the disabled man. They eagerly availed themselves of the opportunity, and now they may be seen at work in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, St. John and Halifax.

A visit to one of these centres is to receive a lesson in patience and application. To the average person of normal health the constant repetition of the same operation would seem almost too monotonous to be possible. Picture, then, a man with the lower part of his body almost helpless, his only means of locomotion a pair of crutches, and whose prospect for the future is the sure knowledge that his increasing disability will bring premature termination to his earthly existence. He may be seen carefully attaching poppy replicas to stems, packing and binding each one as though his sole interest was concentrated in a single flower. True, his hands are slow and his total output is considerably less than the average of other men working about him, but the principal thing to be remembered is that this work gives him an opportunity for a brief period to forget his disability and to feel that he is doing something towards earning his livelihood.

When one considers that every additional poppy distributed on Armistice Day means the extension of this opportunity to work for handicapped veterans, then the second great and significant value of the Veterans' poppy can be appreciated.

There is a third objective in the distribution of Veterans' poppies which parallels in significance each of the other two. Veterans' poppies provide the means of accumulating funds for the relief of the distressed and the dependents, and for the promotion of objects benefitting ex-service men generally. A general survey of our community will reveal the urgent need of such a fund to deal with emergencies which are not now provided for in municipal or other welfare work.

AND WE, RUN ACROSS
ONE OCCASIONALLY, TOO!

An acquaintance met Horace Greeley one day and said: "Mr. Greeley, I've stopped your paper."

"Have you?" said the editor. "Well, that's too bad."

And he went his way. The next morning Mr. Greeley met his subscriber again and said, "I thought you had stopped the Tribune?"

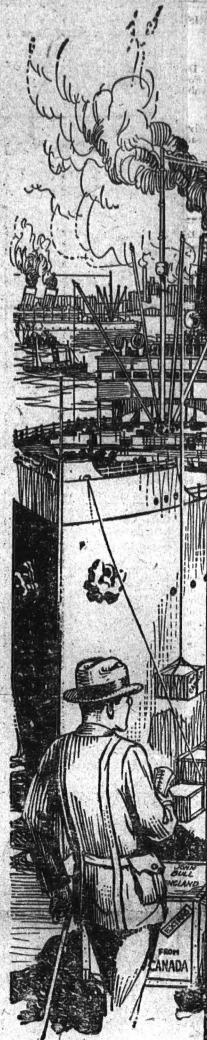

"So I did."

"Then, there must be some mistake," said Mr. Greeley, "for I just came from the office and the presses were running, the clerks were as busy as ever, the compositors were hard at work, and the business was going the same as yesterday and the day before."

"Oh," ejaculated the subscriber, "I don't mean that I had stopped the paper! I stopped only my copy of it because I don't like your editorials."

"Pshaw!" retorted Mr. Greeley. "It wasn't worth while taking up my time to tell me such a trifle as that. My dear sir, if you expect to control the utterances of the Tribune by the purchase of one copy a day, or if you think to find a newspaper or magazine worth reading that will never express convictions at right angles with your own, you are doomed to disappointment."

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Robert returned last week from a visit with friends in the central States. Mrs. Robert had been away several months and was joined by her husband recently for the return trip.

Quality

The most urgent requirement in Canada's Agricultural Products

CANADA produces every year large quantities of wheat, oats, barley, butter, cheese, bacon, beef, eggs, apples, potatoes, grass seed and clover seed that she cannot consume. Her natural outlet for these products is, of course, Great Britain—the one great consuming country of the world with an open market.

Unfortunately, nearly every other country with any surplus of food products seems to want to send its surplus to this same market. The keenness of the competition on this, our only market, and the energy and resourcefulness of our competitors began to impress themselves upon the Department of Agriculture some time ago, but it is only within very recent years that the real and only way to grapple with this problem has been discovered, or at least put into effect. This Department now believes, as do also most of the farmers of this country, that the "grading" of our agricultural products is the policy and practice that is seeing us through the struggle and will assure us of our rightful place on the British market.

"Grading" means the classifying of products, whether they be hogs, butter, cheese, eggs or anything else, into what might be called in a general way "BEST," "GOOD," "FAIR" and "POOR."

These exact words are not used in describing the grades, but that is what is meant. The purpose served in grading is threefold:

(1) Educational. When the producer sees the relative quality of his product he is spurred on to maintain that quality if it is the "best" or to improve the quality where necessary.

(2) Fair Play. When products are not graded the inferior article for various reasons often brings as much as the superior article, and the credit and advantage of putting the superior product on the market is lost to the one who really deserves it.

(3) Facilitating Trade. The dealer learns to have confidence in the article he is buying and buys more freely, because it is guaranteed by grading, and gradually everybody gets to know what the "best" article really looks like or tastes like. In short, grading brings about standardization and ensures to the producer the best price.

Canada now grades her cereals, grass seeds, hay, potatoes, apples, eggs, butter, cheese, wool and bacon hogs. The results have been in every case beneficial and in some cases quite markedly so, even though the grading system has been in effect in some cases for only two or three years, thus:—

Cheese—Grading began April 1st, 1923. Canadian cheese the year before had fallen into such disfavor on the British market that New Zealand cheese was quite commonly preferred. Today Canadian cheese commands cents per pound higher than New Zealand.

Butter—Grading began same time as for cheese. The reputation of our butter was then indeed at low ebb. Canadian butter today, while not the best on the market, is rapidly improving in quality and gaining in reputation.

Hogs—Over two years ago the Department of Agriculture began to grade live hogs at the packing houses and stock yards. The 10% premium paid by the packers for "select" bacon hogs as against "thick smooths" as classed by departmental graders has done wonders to improve the quality of our hogs and develop the bacon industry.

Best Canadian bacon, which ordinarily was quoted two years ago from 10 to 18 shillings a long hundredweight below Danish, has gradually grown in the estimation of the British wholesale buyer until it is now quoted at only from 1 or less to at most 3 or 6 shillings per long hundredweight below the best Danish.

This improvement in price is, of course, due to quality and has come about very gradually, the spread narrowing down by a shilling or two a month until now it is not at all a rare occurrence to see best Canadian selling on a par with the Danish article.

Eggs—Canada was the first country to grade and standardize eggs. These grades and standards apply not only to export, interprovincial and import shipments, but also to domestic trading.

The basis is interior quality, cleanliness and weight.

Standardizing Canadian eggs has established confidence between producer and consumer and between exporter and British importer, and has resulted in a greatly-increased demand for the Canadian egg both at home and abroad.

Other products might be mentioned where grading has worked to the great advantage of the producer and to the advancement of Canadian agriculture. Already Great Britain recognizes our store cattle, wheat, cheese, eggs, apples and oats as the best she can buy.

It is for us to so improve our other products, particularly our butter and bacon, as to bring them also into this list of "the best on the British market" and consequently the highest priced.

Grading enabled us to do this for cheese, wheat, eggs and apples.

Grading is helping us to do it for butter and bacon.

Quality Counts
Quality is thus the first objective for the Canadian export trade, and, then steady, regular supply. It is along these lines that the Department of Agriculture is working by educational methods, and the regularity of this policy is seen in the growing volume of Canada's agricultural exports. Look at these figures:

His City of Refuge

The train came to a grinding stop at a small town in the South, and the head of a gentleman of color protruded from a window at the end of a car. Seated by his side could be seen a brown-skinned maiden.

"Does yo' know a cullud pusion by de name o' Jim Brown what lives hyah?" he asked a station longer.

"Ain' nevah heered o' no Jim Brown hyah, an' ah lived in dis town fo' ten years."

"Is yo right shuah dey ain't nevah been no Jim Brown aroun' hyah?"

"Postutely."

Evidence To The Soak

A man quite half seas over sagged down on the lobby lounge beside a dignified clergyman.

"Thish's fine hotel," he began.

"Whadja say to havin' a drink?" asked the boozey one genially.

The clergyman's face set severely.

"No, thank you. I never touch the vile stuff."

"Shay!" exclaimed the other.

"Whadja givin' me? You got-ha collar on backwards now."

The minister and his bride were preparing to eat a bite at a luncheonette. They were busily engaged with the bill of fare when the waitress, who was a much-malcolmed and peroxidized young miss, came up to take their order. Suddenly the young minister looked up from the bill of fare, smiled sweetly at the waitress, and said: "How is the chicken today?"

"Pretty good, kid," she retorted, "how are you?"

WRITER CALLS WOMEN CATS

(By Universal Service)

"You women have not yet begun to exist. You have no brain-power, no poise, no balance, no morality—nothing. You are just jungle cats. You ought to be behind bars."

This criticism of women was delivered by Mr. Gilbert Frankau, the novelist, at a debate, organized by the Tomorrow Club at Central Hall, Westminster. His audience was composed chiefly of women.

"We live in a curious, vulgar world," he said, "which is principally ruled by women who have no morality."

"The first principle of morality is to like your work. Will the women who like washing-up kindly stand up? Not one! Darning? Sweeping? Ah, two women have stood up. You have all proved that you loathe and detest your job—housekeeping!"

"You are poor mothers, most of you, who are mothers, but of course, you are charming. So are other things which have no morality. Leopards, for instance. You purr when you obtain your own way. You bite when you do not."

"Agnes, in David Copperfield, is the sweetest character ever drawn by any novelist. She never used her nails scissors on her hair. She was sweet, maidenly, retiring, loving to the end. Not even she had any morality. She was, at any rate, neither over-exposed or under-developed, like most modern girls."

Mrs. Cecil Chesterton took up the cudgel for women. "Men do as little as possible for their money," she declared. "Women do their work because they feel they have a contract with their employer."

The meeting decided by a large majority that women were no less moral than men, and Mr. Frankau was defeated.

MEETING ROCKY MOUNTAIN BRANCH OF CANADIAN MINING INSTITUTE

A meeting of the Rocky Mountain Branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy was held in the grill room of the Greenall Hotel on Monday. The following members were present: Mr. G. C. MacKenzie, secretary-treasurer Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, Montreal; Mr. R. Strachan, Fernie, B.C.; Messrs. O. E. S. Whitehead, D. Day, J. C. Cox, W. G. Jewitt, H. W. Clark, of Coleman; W. Stevenson, F. L. Smith and Wm. Hutchinson, of Hillcrest; H. Blake, of Bellevue; G. A. Vlasse, L. P. Robert, Wm. Barnard, H. Carmichael and M. Johnson, of Blairmore.

Mr. Johnson acted as chairman of the meeting and in a few words welcomed the members and expressed pleasure at having with them Mr. MacKenzie from Montreal, who was making his annual tour through Western Canada, stopping at various mining centres and holding meetings with local members of the Institute. Mr. MacKenzie was then called upon to address the meeting.

Mr. MacKenzie outlined the programme of his annual tour and was very pleased to again visit Blairmore to meet the old and new members of the local branch, also to meet many gentlemen of Blairmore and district with whom he became acquainted when he attended the annual western meeting held here last October. He spoke at length of the gold fields of northern Quebec and northern Ontario.

In the latter province considerable development is taking place by several large companies and quite a large sum of money was being invested in the search for the precious metal. He mentioned that Ontario will probably reach gold production to the value of $30,000,000 during the year 1923. The whole of Canada's gold production for the year 1922 was slightly over $31,000,000, out of this Ontario's share was valued at slightly over $25,000,000. If Ontario reaches its expectations, it will be an increase of some twenty per cent over that of 1922.

He also dealt with the ore bodies of Manitoba, where considerable work is being done, much money being spent and good progress being made. Considerable is being done by the diamond drill, apart from shaft sinking and drift work, some of the ore running from five to six per cent copper and $5.00 in gold. Very large bodies of ore, both high and low grade, containing millions of tons, have already been proven.

The Turner Valley oil field was also touched upon, where the prospects of a much greater production of oil is very promising, mentioning in respect to one of the wells that wet gas had come in without any warning under a heavy pressure, forcing the casing a considerable distance up in the air, the gas becoming ignited, doing considerable damage, and that a great amount of money had to be spent before the fire could be extinguished and the well under control.

The affairs of the Institute were outlined, mentioning the progress being made in many ways. It was also mentioned that the Institute had three of their members representing mining and metallurgy at the empire congress and council of mining and metallurgical institutions held in London, England, last year, while all other British colonies sent between them but ten representatives. Dr. B. C. Wallace, of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, was unanimously chosen chairman of the conference in London. It is expected, and very probable, that the next meeting of the empire congress, in 1927, will be held in Canada. This was mentioned in London last year and was very much favored by the congress.

A number of suggestions were brought forward by Messrs. Whitehead, Stevenson, Strachan, McLeod, MacKenzie and Vlasse, other members entering into the discussions. Mr. MacKenzie, along with Mr. Strachan, left Blairmore Tuesday morning for Fernie, where other meetings are being held.

WAR MEMORIALS SOUVENIR NUMBER FOR NOVEMBER 11th

There is shortly being published an edition that promises to be one of the most interesting yet offered to the general public. It is a volume that expresses the apologetic spirit which was manifest at the close of the Great War, when the erection of monuments to the fallen was prevalent throughout Canada.

This beautiful edition of "The Municipal Review of Canada," now in its 21st year, comes out for the general sale at the 11th hour of the 11th of November next, and is entitled "War Memorials Souvenir Number." The purpose is to show by over five hundred illustrations, the permanent memorials erected by an appreciative people to the 60,000 Canadians who paid the supreme sacrifice.

The co-operation of Lieut-General Sir Arthur Currie was readily secured and he has given a Foreword which will have particular significance. A ready response was received from municipal and other public men and bodies, as well as from the chief executives of railways, banks, and industrial concerns who have erected monuments for commemorative tablets.

The Municipal Publishing Company of Montreal, are producing this volume and their work as publishers for the past twenty-one years is well known, notably by the production of a two-hundred-page pictorial gazetteer of urban and rural life, entitled "Municipal Canada," for the Winnipeg Exhibition.

This volume will be placed on sale at the 11th hour of the morning of the 11th of November throughout Canada by returned men and representatives of Veterans' organizations, and all profits accruing from the sale of these copies will be turned over to war widows and orphans.

There is no mention of war to appear in the edition, and the entire effort is being concentrated on showing the people illustrations, the appreciation of the Canadian public in erecting monuments to perpetuate the memory of the dead.

The volume is one which should appeal to all, and it will be remembered that each copy bought now or on the 11th of November will mean that a large part of the two dollars it is sold for will go to assist war widows and orphans.

In connection with the sale of copies, a statement will be issued subsequent to the 11th of November giving the names and amounts received from municipalities, firms, individuals, and showing the total sum turned over to Veterans' organizations.

The recent issue of the A.T.A. Magazine quotes the following as the credit side of the Blairmore ratepayers' "No Return" account:

- (1) 13 teachers engaged after three strenuous months' effort;
- (2) 13 teachers living in Blairmore qualifying for distinguished (7) service medals; (Correspondence courses in fraternity, loyalty to one's profession, underbidding and achievement—all given by the school board members free of charge, not chargeable by this account);
- (3) An unvarying notoriety of the Blairmore School Board as a corporate body;
- (4) Satisfaction at being able to defy a disaffected electorate;
- (5) A disaffected school.

ALBERTA SUGAR FOR ALBERTA PEOPLE

The Raymond sugar factory will be operating in another two weeks. It is no unforeseen misfortune, however, the huge, million-dollar plant, representing, not only the money, but likewise the faith and goodwill of the American financial men interested in the venture, is ready to begin its initial campaign. The best harvest, will be hatched with vigor in all parts of the producing area. While the wet weather is causing some concern it is not considered a serious menace to the beet crop as a frost severe enough to prevent harvesting it at this season is a remote possibility.

This is a crucial time in connection with the new sugar industry. The selling stage is here. The factory shortly will be turning out its product, a product that will compare favorably with any sugar on the market, officials of the Canadian Sugar Factories, Ltd., assert. They point to over half a century of experience in the manufacturing business as proof of their ability to produce sugar capable not only of holding the home markets but of reaching out, and making good in more distant trade fields.

Alberta sugar—all other considerations being equal—should be used on the tables of Alberta people. It should be used by Alberta manufacturers of goods into which sugar goes. The degree in which home industries are supported largely determines the success or failure of these industries. Western Canada is struggling to attract industries that will consume its increasing volume of raw agricultural products, converting them into concentrated form for wide and economic distribution. Industries make for diversity of production, and diversity of production means more stability in every branch of community life.

In placing an order for the first car of Raymond sugar a Lethbridge wholesale grocery firm, Campbell, Wilson & Horne, showed a type of home to home industry that some of our people should emulate.

For something they believe in the sugar industry in Southern Alberta, they believe it is going to prove a major factor in standing agriculture in this country—and they are backing up their faith by their works. Other wholesale and retail concerns in this and other cities of the province are willing to co-operate in popularizing Raymond sugar, and it now rests with the people of Alberta to buy the home product.

ANNIVERSARY

St. Luke's Church, Blairmore, Oct. 10, 1923.

Dear Friends: Twenty-one years ago today the parish of St. Luke's, Blairmore, of the Church of England, came into being. A small congregation of faithful church people have carried on the local parish and kept the banner of the Cross flying. Now the time of our Patronal Feast should call us all to the arms of our mother church to thank God for His benefits in the past, to pray for His help in the present and to intercede for His guidance in the future.

The mine disaster at Hillcrest, our daughter church's "removal" many of our men. The great war took many more away who never returned; and through the vicissitudes of the mine a faithful few have stood by the faith of our fathers.

I am asking, through the courtesy of the editor of The Blairmore Enterprise, that all members will make a special effort to be present on Sunday morning at the Lord's Own Service at 11. Some have wandered away. Come home to our dear mother church. Let us pledge ourselves anew to God's holy altar in the Blessed Sacrament to be faithful soldiers of the Cross. Such a birthday will give us all the divine assistance and we can there join with all our loved ones, living and departed, also with all the company of heaven in the angelic hymn, "Gloria in Excelsis (Do)" the message of the hope and peace for a world that needs in every age "Peace on earth, goodwill towards men."

Yours in the service,
H. LAURENCE NOBBS,

FREE TRADE IN EUROPE MIGHT MAINTAIN PEACE

Washington. — Faintest suggestions made by delegates to the Interparliamentary Union's conference that the Washington Government again take the leadership in promoting reduction of world armaments, were answered yesterday by Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, in an address before the closing session.

Referring to the desire often expressed by the president for a new conference on armaments conference, Mr. Burton said: "The president and his representatives are not alone in their outlook looking toward the same ideal as are being considered in various European conferences, and it would be an intrusion for our president to ask for such a conference if it were not within these efforts are being made."

He made it clear later, however, that he was speaking on his own authority and was not inspired from the White House to make the statement.

The suggestion that a policy of free trade in Europe would eliminate its nations and would at the same time greatly broaden the markets of some European countries, was made by Andrew R. McMaster, of Montreal, M.P. for Brome, a member of the Canadian delegation. Canada's interest in such custom agreements, he said, was in the development of its foreign trade, particularly the marketing for wheat exports. The development of such markets, he said, was necessary to the future welfare of the Dominion.

Debaters To Tour Canada

Montreal.—The first purely imperial tour of universities' debaters will be inaugurated early in the new year when a quartet of students representing the University of Toronto, the University of the United Kingdom will visit Canada and traverse the country from ocean to coast, holding debates with teams from practically all the Canadian universities.

The range of subjects to be debated is wide and of a decidedly imperial character. Of these the Old Countrymen will uphold the resolution that "the British Empire is a necessary and a just thing," while the Americans will oppose it, and the Canadians will "grade," while another subject in which the Americans will oppose the British is "that the United States should be resolved that a naval base should be established at Singapore and that the dominions should establish naval squadrons in the Pacific."

After their tour of the Maritime Provinces, N.B., early in the new year, and after taking on the universities of the Maritime provinces and of Quebec and Ontario, they will be at Winnipeg, Regina, and Edmonton, and will be finishing up at Victoria, B.C.

They probably will sail from Vancouver for the Antipodes, where they will engage in verbal encounter with the students of the universities of Australia and New Zealand.

POPPY DAY CAMPAIGN

Dear Sir or Madam:
The Provincial Command of the G. W.V.A. is with the approval of the Minister of Education, holding throughout the whole province an Essay Competition for all schools, colleges, etc. The following are the regulations governing the competition, and it is hoped that at least one essay will be forwarded by your school, college, and Principal's name should be written on each essay. Subject—The Poppay. Length of essay—Minimum 300 words, maximum 500 words.

Divisions—There will be three divisions, each division carrying a 1st, 2nd and 3rd prize.
1st Division—High Schools, 3rd and 4th years.
2nd Division—High Schools, 1st and 2nd years.
3rd Division—Grade 8 and under.
Prizes—1st division: 1st $25.00, 2nd $15.00, 3rd $10.00; 2nd division: 1st $25.00, 2nd $15.00, 3rd $10.00; 3rd division: 1st $25.00, 2nd $15.00, 3rd $10.00.

General regulations—The Principal of each school will forward to the member of the provincial executive named hereafter who resides nearest his school, the best essay in any or each of the above divisions, on or before October 30th, 1925.

The following is the list of members of the provincial executive:
A. Walker, Provincial President, 311 Dominion Bank Bldg., Calgary, Alta.
Dr. G. H. Wade, 1st Vice-President, Hanna, Alta.
W. J. Hill, 2nd Vice-President, care of Workmen's Compensation Board, Edmonton, Alta.
H. Baker, Dominion Representative, 2220 8th Ave., Medicine Hat, Alta.
Jas. East, 1220 9th Ave., Edmonton, Alta.
T. Turcotte, Secretary G.W.V.A., Lethbridge, Alta.

The provincial executive member will adjudicate all the essays sent in to be judged forward the best 10 in his opinion in each division to this office. These will be finally judged by the central committee, the percent of which will be published later in the press, who will decide which of the best three essays in each division.

The list of prize-winners will be published in the press and the winner will be notified through his or her principal by letter as soon as possible after the completion of the competition.
Yours faithfully,
ALBERTA PROVINCIAL SECRETARY G.W.V.A., Alberta Command.

Stop and Think!

Canada and the United States lose $500,000,000 per year in fire waste. Every day

One hospital fire.
Three printing plant fires.
Four warehouse fires.
Five church fires.
Five school fires.
Six departmental store fires.
Eight public garage fires.
Fifteen hotel fires.
Three hundred and fifty-nine dwelling fires.
Fire insurance saves nothing—it merely distributes the loss.
Fire protection saves something—at a high cost of upkeep.
Fire prevention saves all—at little or no cost.

The Lethbridge Herald-Y.M.C.A. annual road race takes place at Lethbridge on November the 9th. Freddie Lees, of Coleman, winner for the past two seasons, will have a third try for the Herald cup, which if he wins will be his for keeps. Freddie is expected to be up against strong opponents this year.

Mr. Colman, who for some time has been acting as assistant agent and telegraph operator at the local C.P. depot, is being transferred to the Lethbridge depot and takes up his new post in about two weeks, enjoying a holiday in the meantime. Mr. Colman is being succeeded here by Mr. Levanco, of Burnis.

Mr. C. J. Tompkins, local district agent for the Sun Life Assurance Company, returned from Calgary the early part of the week, having been absent several weeks consulting an eye specialist. The eye was operated upon a few days ago and Mr. Tompkins expects to have to visit the specialist again in a few days.

On Monday evening, Mrs. James, president of the Calgary Diocesan branch of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada, visited St. Luke's church and gave an inspiring address on women's work in the church. She was the guest of Mrs. D. G. Mackenzie, leaving for Pincher Creek on Tuesday morning.

Show us a place in which the merchants advertise 100 per cent and we'll show you a good town. A newspaper is the best index in the world as to the sort of people that make up the community in which it is published. If you see a newspaper well filled with advertising, you can bet your life it's published in a live town where the business men and women are awake and getting the business. The sign never fails.

A timid young woman awoke one night and heard a mouse in her room. First one slipper was hurled mouseward, and then the other. She succeeded in stopping the noise for a short time, but then it started again. Terrified, she wondered what to do next. Finally an idea struck her. She sat up in bed and meowed.

Expenditures of approximately $300,000 for road improvements and the building of national highways in forty states, is the record made by the Kiwanis International during the past eight months, according to a statistical report of the civic activities carried on by the 1400 clubs on the North American continent.

Seven hundred and thirty-three former Canadians, who have lived in the United States for more than six months, returned to Canada in the first nine days of October to make their permanent home here. In the same period, 479 immigrants entered Canada from the United States, and the entry of tourists and other non-immigrants reached 376,255.

In an article published in the Scientific American, Police Commissioner E. H. Furlong, of New York, opens a campaign for finger printing everybody in the United States over the age of twelve. He says it would not only enable the police to capture criminals, but would help in finding lost persons and in identifying persons suffering from amnesia.

The choir of St. Luke's church are rendering part of Mendelssohn's setting at the 11 a.m. communion service on Sunday. This has been arranged from plain chant by the organist of Westminster Abbey from M. 58-1 of 1851, and is considered to be a most suitable setting for small choirs and congregations. Being the Patronal Feast, special hymns will be sung from the Nisfield hymn book, which has been obtained from the Community of the Resurrection purposely for use at this Feast. The priest-in-charge will officiate throughout the day.
